Rev. H. H. Van Auken devoted his sermon to the press last Sunday evening. He spoke of the great work the newspapers had done and were doing to benefit civilization, and also of what a vast amount of work the publishers of newspapers did freely for society, parties, individuals and the community in general. There was no profession or business that donated more for the public benefit than did the press. They were always ready to give freely, and no society ever asked favors of the press and did not have their requests cheerfully granted. It was given all the time of their labor and space. The reverend gentleman merits the thanks of the press for his eloquent statement of the work and services rendered by the press.

The Hunter Savidge.
A dispatch to the Detroit Press of last Wednesday, from Sand Beach, says:
"The life saving crew in the life boat, and Capt. Wagstaff with the hunter tug Sand Beach, went to Hardwood Point, six miles north of here, this morning, to assist the tug Runnels in getting the schooner Hunter Savidge off. After four hours' hard work with the pumps and siphon, the Sand Beach pulled her clear, but when she started to pull her into deep water the line parted and the schooner surged back, striking the life boat, smashing the port bow of the latter and almost upsetting the crew. Finally the Sand Beach pulled the schooner into deep water. The Runnels then took the schooner to Sand Beach. Some time after the life saving crew returned, after battling for their lives in trying to reach the harbor against a gale from the south, with a terrible sea running. When they reached the lighthouse they were completely exhausted, and the tug Runnels brought them ashore. Their heads and bodies were badly bruised from being thrown about by the waves. The owners of the schooner are profuse in their thanks to Capt. Plough and the life saving crew, also Capt. Wagstaff and the crew of the Sand Beach, as it is due to their promptness that the Savidge is not a total loss."

The Hunter Savidge is an Alpena boat, and left here on the 24, in tow of the Viking, for Sand Beach, to bring back a load of merchandise. When off Sand Beach her line was cast off, but the schooner was unable to make the harbor, on account of the gale, and was blown ashore. The schooner was taken to Port Huron for repairs.

Lumber Manufacture—1893.
The amount of lumber manufactured by the mills in this city during the year 1893, is shown in the following table—the figures being furnished by the mill firms. The decrease, as compared with the preceding year, is 32,700,000 feet, and is accounted for mostly by there being two mills less in operation—the Potter mill and the Minor Lumber Co. mill—which cut 18,200,000 feet in 1892. The lumber mills in operation this season manufactured 14,500,000 feet of lumber less than they did in 1892:

	1892	1893
